Kristen Norman reports on the articles you'll find in this August issue

Welcome to the Coro Lux newsletter for August! I hope everyone is enjoying their summer, whether you are on vacation, trying to go on vacation, wishing you were on vacation, or pretending to be on vacation! Hopefully this newsletter, and those going forward, will continue to be filled with upcoming live performance information. Everyone at Coro Lux is delighted to be returning to in person rehearsals this fall, and it will be even more special when we are able to perform for a live audience.

Lori Nash

Here is the breakdown on articles for this month. Our intrepid interviewer Ashley Jonkman has a wonderful conversation with outgoing Board Member Lori Nash to share with us. Lori, who sings alto, has been with Coro Lux since its inception, and is quite literally one of the founding forces behind Coro Lux. LaVonne Yazzie has written for us the truly exciting update on the upcoming Coro Lux performance season. We have the usual chorus-centric COVID-19 update by Dr. Joe Alcorn. Finally, our Artistic Director Brad Ellingboe talks to us about the outgoing Coro Lux Board Members, specifically how instrumental they were (pun intended) in steering our merry band of singers toward new heights.

Dr. Joe Alcorn

With that, I hope all our readers enjoy the rest of your summer. Coro Lux is eager to begin rehearsals for a fall season that is unquestionably one to look forward to!

Sharing the details of the upcoming Coro Lux 2021-2022 Season

By LaVonne Yazzie

As I sit down to write this article announcing the exciting upcoming 2021-2022 season that Coro Lux has in store for us, I can't help but think about how much life has changed in the past year and a half. Usually, my writing process involves corralling my thoughts, setting the tone for my articles, and agonizing over word choices, but I feel I wouldn't be doing justice as a writer if I didn't engage in a bit of reflection. For me, writing has always been a wonderful form of therapy, and as any good therapist will tell you, to truly appreciate the good times, you must process and work through the not-so-good times.

The past year and a half have been some of the toughest times that any of us have ever faced. The COVID-19 virus upended all of our lives from what was familiar and safe, forcing us to adapt and adjust. Gone was any sense of normalcy, and we all did the best we could while grappling with the Unknown. We worried about every human interaction (no more touching and hugging, my favorite things!), adjusted to quarantining at home (while going slightly crazy and making sourdough starters) and experienced unprecedented food and supply shortages (remember the rush on toilet paper, flour and beans and the rationing of meat?). Then, things took a grave, serious turn as COVID-19 swept the world, sickening friends and family, hospitalizing entire nations, and taking roughly 4 million lives worldwide.

My purpose in reflecting on these tough times is not to dwell on the negative, but to allow us to appreciate the positive. During the peak of the pandemic, we were solely focused on surviving. Now, post-pandemic, we can focus on thriving. Thriving is the little something extra that adds deeper meaning and pleasure to life, beyond basic human needs. Thriving can mean something different to all of us: for a child, it might be glitter in their art supplies, and for an adult, it might mean resuming meaningful activities that bring personal satisfaction and joy. For Coro Lux and its members, thriving means rediscovering friendships, conditioning vocal cords, dusting off choral folios, breaking out our concert black, and singing together as one voice professionally.

With that in mind, it is my absolute pleasure to share the details of the upcoming Coro Lux 2021-2022 Season. For this upcoming season, Coro Lux will be returning to a normal performance schedule, which has been greatly anticipated by members and fans alike. It is also important to share that in June of 2021, the Coro Lux Board has made it a requirement that all choir members must be fully vaccinated to participate for the season.

To evaluate a con you need a pro

By Dr. Joe Alcorn

Once I had two patients in the same week, both men of about 70, at two different hospitals but each with a problem calling for a surgical intervention. Both were quoted by the surgeon(s) an operative mortality risk of 50% (mostly due to the impact of underlying cirrhosis.) Sounds pretty bad Say they were your patients - what would you advise?

Well, I've quoted risks, but not benefits. So how CAN you decide?! In one case without surgery there was a 100% chance of living, albeit with some cosmetic issues (reasonably well treated by a sweatshirt) and in the other case there was 100% risk of dying painfully of bowel obstruction within the next few days. To that patient, the same odds just sounded a whole lot better - like a 50% chance of survival, in fact. He, and only he, went to surgery and was doing well upon hospital discharge.

Not all treatment risks are surgical. There are some medical conditions of the bowel, for example, treated with a class of drugs for which Azathioprine is perhaps best known. This drug probably doubles your lifetime risk of malignancies called Lymphomas. Why, then, would ANYone want to take it?

First, let's be clear on what that 'doubled risk' is: instead of a lifetime risk of 1 or 2 in 10,000 on NO meds, its use is associated with about a 3-4 in 10,000 risk. Real, but perhaps not dramatic. Meanwhile, if there is a good response to the medication, it might mean that instead of 8 or 10 urgent trips to the bathroom per day, there might be two. Or one. For many that is a very favorable benefit-to-risk ratio compared to doing nothing - and potentially compared to some other treatments, too.

The point is that it is only prudent to examine the risks conveyed by any medical intervention. But those risks are really only meaningful when compared to the benefits of treatment... or the risks of doing nothing at all.

Let's take this discussion to SARS CoV 2 vaccination - which in some parts of the country has been delivered to fewer than 40% of the population: a fall from the top of the list of the world's most successful campaigns three or four months ago, to a mere middling result. I'll confine myself to the mRNA vaccines of Moderna and Pfizer, but also note that over the years and for a variety of diseases, when vaccines have been associated with rare Adverse Events, those have occurred within 6-8 weeks of vaccination. Needless to say, such vaccines are not released unless the disease-related morbidity and mortality of the disease without vaccination is far greater than the risk of adverse events WITH the vaccine.

For our purposes the implications are straightforward: it can be difficult to determine if a very rare event really IS caused by vaccine exposure, or is just a coincidence (another discussion). But now that we have had more than 3.3 BILLION vaccine doses delivered around the world, it's very UNlikely that some brand-new unexpected 'side effect' will emerge. If a COVID 19 vaccine carries a risk of an Adverse Effect, we should have seen it by now.

But before we touch on those potential risks, let us ask, what if we do nothing? What if large parts of the population elect to avoid vaccination?

Well, we are still seeing more than 150 deaths a day in the US, all of them in unvaccinated people. If you are hospitalized with the disease the US mortality rate remains just under 10%.

And, unfortunately, our inability to get everyone vaccinated means the virus is still replicating madly around the world, evolving variants that are FAR more contagious! (See this article for a real world idea of the Delta variant at work, with infection taking place by merely walking by the index case in a store: <https://www.nytimes.com/2021/07/02/world/australia/delta-covid-zero.html>)

It remains difficult to tell if an increase in mortality from a 'new' variant is due to genuinely increased per-case virulence or 'merely' to increased infectivity, greater numbers infected, and by local health care systems being overwhelmed, which is associated with poorer outcome (see https://www.thelancet.com/journals/langlo/article/PIIS2214-109X\(21\)00313-2/fulltext00313-2/fulltext)) though both are possible (see British Medical Journal00313-2/fulltext) 2021;372:n579)

You may recall from previous columns that an index of infectivity for an agent is its R-nought, which is the average number of people in turn infected by each infected person. The original SARS CoV 2 wild type strain seemed to have an R of about 3 (one person infects three who infect 9 who infect 27 and 81, and so on) whereas the Delta variant has been estimated to have an R-nought as high as 8, which is to say 1 person infects 8, who infect 64, who infect 512 and 4096, and so on. Needless to say, THAT kind of infectivity is quite worrisome - and the best way to shut down that variant appears to be vaccine-related protection.

Furthermore, it now appears that between 1/3 and 2/3 of patients hospitalized with COVID-19 and surviving have prolonged symptoms that can include shortness of breath, 'brain fog', diarrhea, and weakness, among others (reviewed here: <https://www.nature.com/articles/s41591-021-01283-z#Fig1>)

So, as long as we have circulating SARS CoV 2, the virus will continue to evolve more infectious variants, about 1 in 6 infected people will have significant symptoms and about 10% of those hospitalized will not survive, while those that do will have a 1/3 to 2/3 chance of debilitating consequences for months afterwards. And with variants of such increased infectivity, it is impossible to assure anyone that they can avoid exposure.

THAT is what we face if we do nothing!

Whereas, on the plus side, vaccination seems to be well above 90% effective in protecting against significant symptoms or death or prolonged post-infectious symptoms. (Always with the caveat that some 10 million people in this country are immune compromised for one reason or another, and far less well-protected by vaccination. They continue to rely on the rest of us to reduce THEIR chances of infection by reducing OUR chances of communicating the disease.)

What about Adverse Effects and vaccines? Do they present risks greater than those conferred by the virus?

In the trials of both vaccines (Moderna and Pfizer) a rate of temporary paralysis of a facial nerve (Bell's Palsy) was found in 0.02% of vaccinated patients, but in the much larger numbers now vaccinated, this observation has not held up. Meanwhile, the WHO advisory committee has had reports of inflammation of the heart or its containing membrane in about 40 vaccinated males (and 4 females) per million, ages 12-29, and lower rates for older subjects. (This equals four thousandths of a percent for males and 4 ten-thousandths in females.) These have been mostly mild cases responding to Ibuprofen or similar agents, seemingly a real risk but one small enough compared to those benefits that the WHO does not believe this finding should effect the decision to vaccinate (<https://www.who.int/news/item/09-07-2021-gacvs-guidance-myocarditis-pericarditis-covid-19-mrna-vaccines>). Significant allergic responses such as anaphylaxis or facial or tongue swelling, all temporary and reversible, have been described in one tenth to one hundredth of a percent. Sore arms, some fatigue, a low grade fever, feeling run down for half a day or a day are not infrequent, but you might say these are not unexpected events - the immune system is revved up by vaccination and some of the biochemical signaling that results has these temporary results.

And that's about it.

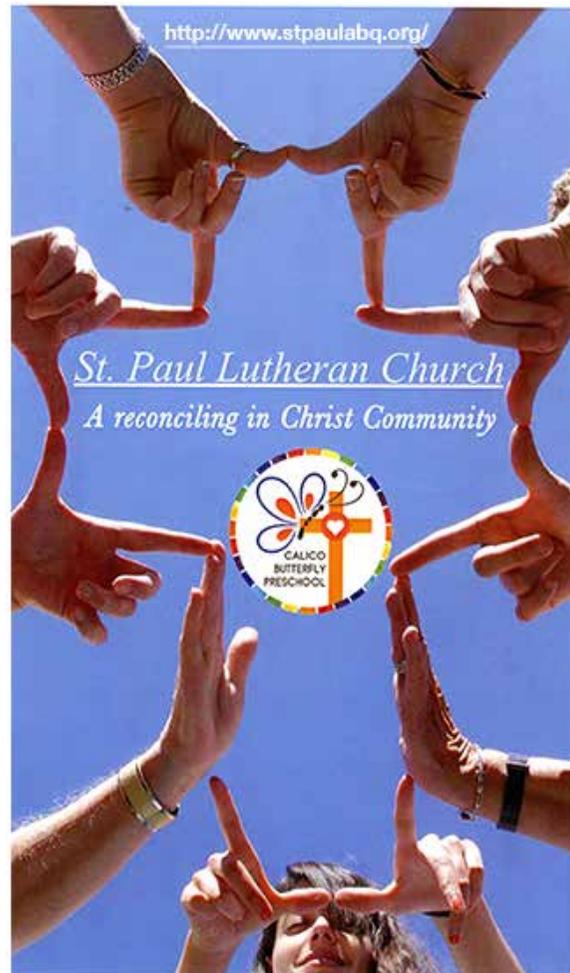

In short, if you approach Vaccination as you might an investment - analyzing both the risks and the benefits, the numbers are now quite clear. Protection from severe disease and death is itself compelling, but prevention of long-term consequences, as well as a contribution to the protection of others, especially the immune-suppressed, are additional benefits. Whereas, after hundreds of millions of injections, these mRNA viruses seem to demonstrate Adverse Effects at a rate far lower than the rate of COVID 19 injury. (A review of mRNA based vaccine misconceptions that is not TOO wonky is found in the June 2021 American Journal of Medicine volume 134 pages 703-704.)

Finally and briefly, on another question- the FDA has been approached by Pfizer (and will be by Moderna) to initiate clearance for booster injections. This is based in part on some experience around the world - especially Israel - where there have been some symptomatic COVID infections in folks vaccinated a year ago or more. Antibody levels had drifted down, but we don't know the immune status of these people, nor whether different viral variants were involved in the second infection.

Meanwhile, the CDC points out that dwindling antibody levels in the blood are not sufficient to establish vulnerability to re-infection. In the presence of adequate 'memory cells', the immune system can quickly ramp up production of antibodies, thus controlling an infection for which the preexisting and circulating antibody levels seemed low. So the CDC wants access to Pfizer's proprietary data and would understandably be reluctant to suggest a policy of widespread booster shots on the basis of antibody levels alone without clear evidence of clinically significant re-infections in spite of vaccination.

Bottom line: perhaps the evolving experience with vaccinated Americans will demonstrate the need for boosters for some people. However, we do not have evidence for that intervention at this time. Stay tuned.

It's time to recognize the last of the original members of the Board of Directors

By Bradley Ellingboe

For the past several issues I've indulged myself by writing about famous and important musicians. However, this time I'm going to write about four less-famous but, for Coro Lux more important musicians. And they are four of the original members of our Board of Directors: George Arthur, Linda Buffett, Lori Nash and Gayle Shipp.

Gayle Shipp

The original members of the (at that time) five-member board were George Arthur, Kate Austin, Linda Buffett, Lori Nash and Gayle Shipp. Due to ill health, we lost Kate fairly early on, but she was instrumental in doing many of the tasks necessary to put our organization on solid footing.

Lori Nash

Coro Lux was formed in the fall of 2015. Early on I asked people to form a board and shortly thereafter the board worked to fulfill all the processes required to make us a bonafide non-profit within the state of New Mexico. This entailed all kinds of nuts and bolts work, like creating by-laws, setting up a bank account, and filling out form after form after form.

Our by-laws say that members of our Board can serve up to two consecutive three-year terms, after which they must rotate off. After losing Kate, we decided to expand the Board to seven members and so added Paul Bushnell, Kristin Thelander and Vicky Wood.

Because the original Board members would all end their terms in their 6th year— and we feared all that

(As of July 1st we’ve been fortunate to add Mike Hart, but still need another Board member to make seven. The decision was made to let the new Board decide what kind of person they’d ask to fill out the vacant position.)

Going back to my original topic, the original Board has my undying thanks for SO MANY things that I don’t know where to begin. But suffice to say that without them, we would no longer exist.

George was “railroaded” into being President :-)) but has been superb in that role. Now that he’s stepping down, I’m happy to say we’ve created a new “staff” position and made him Art Director. Thank goodness he will continue to design all our visual material!

George Arthur

Gayle set up and maintains our website and everything having to do with electronic communication, ticket sales, and so forth. Though she is off the board, she continues in that role, to which I say, once again, thank goodness!

Both Linda and Lori were called “members at large,” but a better title would have been my “sage counselors.” As we navigated the creation of yet another arts organization within our community, their long experience in Albuquerque helped me steer the ship.

And so ends the first chapter of what we hope will be a long story— that of a chorus that strives to “do good as it does well.” One that will be here for years to come, entertaining and educating audiences and becoming a force for good in New Mexico.

My deepest thanks to the original “Magnificent Five”— George, Kate, Lori, Linda and Gayle. Your work and vision made whatever happens in the future possible!

Ashley Jonkman

Ashley Jonkman interviews Lori Nash, alto and valued former Board member

Lori Nash is one busy lady. She’s the oldest child in a large Norwegian-American family of 11 children, hailing from the town of Roseau, Minnesota—where 40 degrees below is normal in winter. She’s been involved in music, the arts and science, nearly all her life, and is an original Coro Lux member, here since the very beginning of the group’s existence.

She remembers her childhood fondly, as a very musical one. “We didn’t have money really, but we had a very rich life,” she says, their home filled with musical instruments—every child playing at least one, as well as singing in the choir. Her parents and grandparents were also quite musical, and Lori herself learned to play the cello, as well as sing in many elite choirs in high school.

Lori Nash

She played on the girl’s hockey team and got straight A’s in high school, leading to a scholarship to the University of Minnesota, where she met her husband, an accomplished scholar himself. After becoming an engineer at an extremely young age, he went to medical school and became one of the first interns at UNM Medical School—the job that brought the Nashes to Albuquerque in 1964. They resided here for a few years until it was time for Dr. Nash to choose a specialty—dermatology—that took them back to Minnesota for advanced training. There, they weathered 3 of the harshest winters in Minnesota history, until they finally said to themselves, “Why are we putting up with this when we know how great it is in New Mexico?” They headed back out west, where they settled—Dr. Nash making his career at Lovelace and Lori making hers as a medical tech in hematology and oncology. Lori describes her work there as fascinating and challenging, and it allowed her to be home when her two daughters got out of school. “I was bound and determined to be there for them,” she said.

Outside of her career and her family, Lori has had many interests and hobbies— including a devotion to archaeology. After taking many courses in archaeology and pottery restoration, she became part of many archaeological digs all over New Mexico, and even internationally. Each Saturday was a family event in which the Nashes would visit various excavation sites or work on salvaging pieces of pottery and other artifacts. In addition to excavating and restoring, she also played tennis for many years, is part of a book club and has a group of friends she’s been playing Bridge with for 42 years! She enjoys listening to classical music, especially choral music. Her favorite composers include Chopin, Beethoven and Liszt.

While Lori sang for two years with the University of Minnesota Symphony Choir, her cross-country moves forced her to take a break from choir, until a friend talked her into joining the Albuquerque Civic Chorus, where she sang for 15 years. After that, she headed to UNM and sang with the University Chorus, as well as various other groups including an all-women’s group and a Bach-only choir. After Brad Ellingboe retired from UNM, Lori wasn’t sure where to take her musical talents and passion, so she and Linda Buffet decided to give Brad a call. “We missed chorus and we missed Brad, so we called him up and took him out to lunch and said, “We don’t have a thing to do on Tuesday nights, how about you start another choir?” After a bit of persuasion from Linda and Lori, Brad agreed to invite some singers to a party and see how they felt about singing under his direction again. Out of 90 people invited, 82 showed up, and that’s how Coro Lux was born.

Speaking with joy, Lori says, “Coro Lux is our baby as well as Brad’s. We wanted a fully-auditioned choir. I knew that before I died, I’d like to sing in a choir where everybody knew what they were doing, and everybody was committed to it. That’s exactly what’s happened, and it’s been fantastic to see it grow!”

As far as her Tuesday nights since the inception of Coro Lux? Lori remarks, “I just love it, it’s like heaven going to rehearsals. I’m 80 years old, and I’ve never stopped singing. I go to a gym just to keep my diaphragm in shape for singing!” As for her hopes for the upcoming Coro Lux season, Lori is optimistic and excited for what’s to come; “I just want a normal year, where we can put on a holiday concert. I’d love to sing Brad’s Requiem one more time—I told him I’d go anywhere in the world to sing it. Carnegie Hall, London, Budapest, anywhere! That’s what I want for next year.”

Coro Lux can now accept charitable donations in the form of securities

By By Keith Hinds

I am happy to report that ABQ Coro Lux is now the proud owner of an account at Schwab/TD Ameritrade. The Board earlier this year decided to open an account to provide a means by which our non-profit could accept charitable donations in the form of securities. Why? Many people who have retirement or taxable investment accounts prefer to donate stock or mutual funds instead of cash as a way to lower tax bills

Our account is especially suited for two specific philanthropic strategies. One is to make a federal tax-free distribution from your IRA, SEP or SIMPLE retirement account. Eligible IRA owners can make these charitable distributions without having to pay federal income taxes on the distributions. There are some basic guidelines to follow:

- You must have reached the age when you are supposed to take Required Minimum Distributions from your retirement account.
- You may make a charitable distribution for any amount up to your RMD, with a limit of $100,000 per person.
- Charitable distributions from 401(k) plans, 403(b) plans, pension plans or other retirement plans are ineligible. If you are still contributing to your SEP or SIMPLE plan, those are ineligible too.

There's a time for applause, and a time for a helping hand

Although many of our activities have been curtailed by the need to quarantine, nonetheless, our expenses continue. As we do everything in our power to emerge from this pandemic as a healthy organization, we ask that you consider making a contribution. Coro Lux is a 501(c)(3) non-profit and all donations are tax-deductible as allowed by law.

- The distribution proceeds must be paid directly to the qualified charity.

The second strategy is open to anyone fortunate enough to own stock or mutual funds that have appreciated in value. Publicly traded securities are the non-cash assets most frequently donated to charities, and the reason is simple. Aside from the ease of transferring securities, there is the potential to eliminate any capital gains tax you might owe were you to sell the security and donate the cash proceeds instead. Naturally, there are considerations:

- You can usually deduct the full fair market value of appreciated assets you have held for over a year.
- Generally, you must be able to itemize deductions to take advantage of the full tax benefits.
- There are limits to the amount you can deduct from your taxable income. The rules for calculating deduction limits can be quite complex.

As with any matter that involves taxes, you should always consult with your personal investment and tax advisors before making any final decisions. Luckily, we will have access to knowledgeable professionals through a support line at Schwab/TD Ameritrade.

Another resource for information on charitable giving strategies is Keith Hinds, our new Board President. Keith is a CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER™ practitioner, and can help with any questions you might have regarding donating to ABQ Coro Lux. Please be assured any conversations will be held in strict confidence.

Give us a call or email if you want to explore your options. Your Board deeply appreciates the generosity of our donors over the years. We hope our new capacity to accept publicly traded securities will benefit our existing donor base, and who knows, encourage more people to help us grow our presence and “do well by doing good!”
