Coro Lux donates $1,800 ok concert proceeds to Roadrunner Food Bank

Albuquerque's Coro Lux is proud to announce a donation of $1,800 to Roadrunner Food Bank, representing proceeds raised through last February's FebFest concert at the Cathedral Basilica of St. Francis in Santa Fe.

The contribution reflects the group's commitment to "do good as it does well," using the power of music to make a positive difference in the community. Through the generosity of concert goers and supporters, the choir was able to turn an afternoon of music into meaningful support for individuals and families experiencing food insecurity throughout New Mexico

"Music has the power to bring people together, inspire hope, and create positive change. We are grateful to our audience members and supporters whose generosity made this donation possible," said Coro Lux board president Keith Hinds.

Roadrunner Food Bank plays a vital role in addressing hunger across New Mexico, working with community partners to provide food assistance to individuals and families in need. Coro Lux is honored to support the organization's mission and the important work it does throughout the state. This donation demonstrates that the impact of a concert can extend well beyond the stage. Coro Lux thanks everyone who attended, contributed, and helped make this gift possible.

About Coro Lux

Coro Lux ("Chorus of Light") is an Albuquerque-based vocal ensemble dedicated to the preparation and performance of great choral music for the enrichment and delight of our audiences and ourselves, and to propagating love of the choral art in the next generation of singers.

About Roadrunner Food Bank

Roadrunner Food Bank is New Mexico’s largest food bank, working to end hunger by distributing food through a network of community partners and programs serving people across the state.
